*If nature's richest gifts could ever bribe
If genius wit & Eloquence could charm
If grief of sorrowing friends or anguish wild
That wrings the widow's & the Orphan's heart
Could [illegible] Death [?] the uprighted Stroke
Long had this victim of his wrath been Spar'd*

*Mourning Survivors let all care give place
To that great care most demands your thoughts
The care that brings the troubled soul to Christ
[?] high your hopes there is, beyond the grave
A life of bliss, where Death shall never more [?] you from joys that know or bound nor bind.*

*Short is thy night, dark grave, the op'ning Heav'n
Shall pour its light within thee. She who sleeps
Shall wake in that blest morning to behold
Him in whom trusting she found peace in death.*

*This hope hath dried the tears of filial grief
And warn'd the sorrowing heart where pious care
O'er these, lov'd relics plac'd this sad memorial
Paid [?] of her faith on earth may they [illegible] and partake with her the bliss of Heav'n.*
